

A Journey of a Poor Woman

In this nature everything seems in balance and exists in pairs. Every kinds of living creature on the earth spend his/her life in pair. God has given responsibility to each sex according to his/her power for maintaining this nature. Nature regulates the life of each. On the earth some living creatures live in organized manner (i.e. society or group). Human being lives in society. His /her life regulates according to society's tires-rituals as well as states law. In this world, male-female's life is more confines by society's rule. It is seen that female's duty and responsibility only connects with family her husband and children. She sacrifices her whole life for looking after her family without taking any value. While other side maledominates whole society. He is force to do anything. Society seems more liberal towards male. If a man gets marry twice or thrice, it is considered great. No objects by if a girl takes decision or speaks single words, she faces difficulty in life, opposed and abused by her parent's family. Generally, it is thinking of society that female has flexible mind, she can't take decision in marriage affair.

In Indian society, a female since childhood to age of marry dominated by parents and after marriage by her husband. That's why on question always strikes my mind why should female pay for being a woman, often she has to compromise with her happiness, her wishes her dignity and sometimes even with her honour. Why does society not give value to her emotion and think about her dignity. She is considered as working thing. Whenever one wants used and thrown it.

In my life, I have crossed a women name Mrs. Shashi, resident of Bihar, faced cruelty only for being a woman. She belongs to Jain community which community is procured for highest literacy and being cultured. But like other community's female Mrs. Shashi, faced punishment only being a woman. She spent her whole life in thorns and waves of sadness. When she was just 19 years old, got married. Before marriage, she was informed her parents that her husband is well educated and successful businessman. He has his own factory where boxes are made.

Alas! All these statements were fake. She was cheated. After marriage reality was something else. Her husband was not only unemployed but also a dam lazy fellow, who has not any desire to work for his living hood. Therefore, her dreams were shattered on the ground. She became helpless before her destiny. Anyhow she always kept try to encourage her husband to do some make for his family. But unfortunately all in vain. Her all valuable words were worthless for her husband. He did not change his nature. So unhappily she tried to start living with her bad destiny.

Perhaps, this was not enough; her destiny has some cruel speaking for her. Later she came to know that her husband has having an extra-marital after and moreover also with his own besides this, he has other illegal relations outside too. At last, she burst, heart stopped beating.

Story waves of reality attached on her sandy palace dreams and at the end, all her wishes dreams were damaged and washed away.

Notwithstanding, this helpless lady had a hope that perhaps after having their own baby, his mind might be changed, he would start caring his family with passage of time. When ever she found him in good mood she tried to encourage him for job and aware him for future problems which could arise, if he remained unemployed. But there is no any motion was seen in her husband's activity after having three babies.

After that, she understood well that cruelty of her destiny will not love her. So, instead of imprecating her destiny, she accepted the changes of her life and determined formerly that then she should live for herself and for her three babies. She determined, "Yes", she will do job for herself and for her three babies. In this context, she contacted her parents. Her father full cooperated. Here had given higher education and financially help.

Thanks to her father, where in Indian society where after marriage, parents keep themselves away from their daughter a let her live accordingly to her destiny. Shashi's father played great role.

After completing her education she got a job of teacher in a Jain foundation school. Later along with this job she has been doing part time job as a singer in AIR Allahabad, because teacher's shakily was seeming onset's factory for her family. Now she is playing roles as a father becoming the bread miner of family an as a mother looking after her three babies teaching them morals of life, providing good atmosphere for studies. It seems that she has become broad an earth and caring and conveying as sky for her children. Now-a-days at age of 47, she is still fighting and struggling. It would be not wrong to say that her body has been working as a Rishi Dhadhich. Today her elder son Navin is of 26 years, is a photographer and well established. Her second son Ujjwal is of 24 years is an English teacher in a private school and youngest son Navneet has completed his graduation with good marks and pursuing a computer course. In this way all are will established and progressing in their life just because of their mother firm determination, courage and hard work.

It is said that bad times are like rocks not ready to break but Shashi's hard work made them to get diluted and if there is something still hard and rocky it's her husband's heart. He married another woman and living his own life with her. Now Shashi living apart from him wants divorced so that there should be no connection or relation with that man.

When I heard the story of Shashi, my heart suddenly speaks opps! Perhaps her father had shown this enthusiasm in selecting better person for her daughter or she could have let complete her education first. At least her valuable 12 years could have been saved. She could escape of that cruel face of destiny which she was faced in life.

This story is not only of Shashi we can found more in our surroundings, many women like Shashi are still grabbed in paws of time and unfortunately forced to face treating, circumstance and disgusting situation. I hope who ever read the story of Shashi's hard work and encouragement. This will motivate and turn their life from sadness to happiness. Today, there is need of such education which could change the life of women.
