

Editorial

At the outset I would like to thank everybody who has helped me in bringing out "Indian Journal of Pathology: Research and Practice" for two years or so. Though we faced "Teething Problems" but still our authors, reviewers and sponsors have spared their valuable time and resources for the journal.

I try my best to strengthen 'IJPRP' and overcome its weakness, get more opportunities and overpower threats. Readers are most welcome to send their feedbacks.

As shown by the recent experience in our IJPRP.

- Only clinically relevant articles need to be published.

- Article that impact routine practice need to be encouraged.
- Original research manuscripts and rare cases of interest are to be encouraged in future.
- Readership base need to be widely encouraged.

We request all the members of the association and the fraternity to help in improving the quality of the scientific material of IJPRP.

We thank all of you again and especially Mr. A. LaL, and team in bringing out improvement in quality of further issues.

We look forward to hear from you, regarding aim and scope, rapid publication, information for subscribers and disclaimers.

R.K. Bhatnagar

Professor (Pathology) Rtd.

Maulana Azad Medical College, Delhi